OREGON STATE UNIVERSITY

Facts About OSU

Oregon State University is the land-grant university for the State of Oregon. It began as an academy called Corvallis College in the 1850's, became a liberal arts college in 1865, began to receive state support in 1868, and graduated its first class in 1870.

Today it has a main campus of 432 acres and many thousands of acres of forest and farm lands for research and teaching, both adjacent to the campus and in several parts of the state.

The student body numbers more than 12,000; the faculty—many of whom teach only part time—numbers more than 1,500.

The facilities for physical education, outdoor recreation, and intercollegiate athletics are especially well planned and well located, with fields for intramural sports and recreation close to the center of the campus and to the residence halls. The Coliseum can seat 10,500 for a basketball game and more than that for other occasions when the main floor is used for seating. The Stadium can seat 32,000.

The Horner Museum, on the lower floor of the Coliseum, has attractive exhibits of local, national, and international significance. Wildlife exhibits in this Museum and in the Natural History Museum of the Zoology Department provide lifelike displays of birds and animals.

Rapidly expanding research facilities provide excellent opportunities for experimental work by faculty and graduate students, and to some extent for undergraduates. The Forestry Sciences Laboratory, the new Oceanography Building, the new Radiation Laboratory, the Water Laboratory, and the Marine Science Laboratory at Newport all have been made possible through grants from the Federal Government.

Welcome

OREGON STATE UNIVERSITY students, faculty, and administration extend a most cordial welcome to high school students, teachers, and friends participating in the 1967 Beaver Open House.

This program is your guide to the activities planned for the day.

It is our hope that all guests will gain much from visiting the campus and participating in the Open House and will feel that the day has been a profitable one. Please let us know if we can make this annual event more meaningful to you.

Report directly to the Coliseum upon your arrival in Corvallis. Adequate parking facilities will be provided.

School Visitations

Note that School Visitations will be held throughout the day. The visitations to the Schools of Business and Technology, Engineering, Forestry, Home Economics, and Pharmacy will be held in the morning.

The Schools of Agriculture, Education, Humanities and Social Science, and Science will hold visitations in the afternoon.

Guides will lead participants from the Coliseum at the conclusion of the morning Orientation and Coffee Hour period, and at the conclusion of the Noon Luncheon, to the school of first-choice academic interest. At the conclusion of first-choice school visits, guides will be on hand to escort participants to their second-choice areas of academic interest. In this way it will be possible to visit two of the nine schools in the morning and two in the afternoon.
